Adopted in 1974, the Recommendation concerning education for international understanding, co-operation and peace and education relating to human rights and fundamental freedoms is considered a landmark legal instrument that brings together for the first time peace, international understanding, human rights, fundamental freedoms and education. During the last session of UNESCO's General Conference (41 C/Resolution 17), Member States recognized the need to revive and update the instrument in view of the evolving educational landscape and emerging new threats to global peace and human survival. Accordingly, UNESCO undertook technical consultations to collect the views of a wide range of stakeholders on the required revisions and elaborated a first draft that has been shared with Member States for their written comments. A second draft will be prepared based on these comments and negotiated in the context of an intergovernmental Special Committee meeting (May-June 2023), in view of its submission to the 42nd session of the General Conference for eventual adoption.
