The objective of our presentation is to share the path traveled in the Williche Mapuche territory of the Chiloé Archipelago, in southern Chile, from the early desire to advance interculturality as an approach and as a practice in education, health, development productive and, in short, the development of life. First, the understanding of the meaning of Mapu Ñuke (Mother Earth) and its defense; then, the recovery of the original medical system of the archipelago and the exercise of overcoming the ban, the loss of prestige and its updating in the public space. The process that we share describes the interdisciplinary and intercultural relationships, the methodologies that emerge from the dialogue with the indigenous worldview, the epistemological bases that guide the teachings, the learning and its consequences in the promotion of human rights and the construction of peace from the strengthening of identity, cultural control and harmony with the environment.
