The course of education in Chile in the 21st century: Social crisis, Pandemic and Chile is witnessing a scenario of social, political and economic transformation. The social revolt, the pandemic and the recent political events with the triumph of rejection and a process of constitutional change that is still open, generate important challenges for us. These challenges are particularly complex for the education sector. In the last thirty years, aspects central to well-being and social equity, such as social rights, and particularly education, have been commercialized. This meant that in Chile an educational market model was built, thus a system was established where so much freedom was given to the market, which also allowed for profit, which meant that business could be done with education, and not have to reinvest. the utilities they generated for the improvement of educational conditions and pedagogical work, all this with public resources. We must transform what we do to build and contribute to that container space by recovering comprehensive training and generating conditions and environments conducive to learning.
